| Postdoctoral Fellowship in CBT and DBT | | Date Posted: 11.16.2011 |
| Salary: Not Specified | Location: White Plains, NY | |
| Employer/Organization: | Type: Not Specified | |

Cognitive and Behavioral Consultants

Program: Clinical Psychology

Requirements/ Qualifications:

Applicants should have completed their doctoral degree and an APA approved internship by the start date, and have prior experience conducting CBT with children, adolescents, adults and families. Experience or interest in DBT is highly desirable. We offer a competitive salary and benefits package

Job Description

Cognitive and Behavioral Consultants of Westchester (CBCW), LLP, invites applications for a one-year postdoctoral fellowship beginning September of 2012. CBCW is an evidence-based treatment center that serves children, adolescents, adults, families and couples. Our center is located in White Plains, NY, and was founded in 2004 by Drs. Lata McGinn and Alec Miller, both of whom are internationally recognized experts in their respective fields of Cognitive Behavior Therapy (CBT) and Dialectical Behavior Therapy (DBT). CBCW is comprised of a select group of highly skilled clinicians who have been intensively trained in CBT and DBT, and who have obtained additional specialized training for a variety of disorders. We provide comprehensive treatment in both CBT and DBT. We have a collegial and stimulating environment and offer an outstanding opportunity to receive comprehensive training and supervision in CBT and DBT.

Post-doctoral fellows will conduct individual, family and group therapies, and co-lead one or more CBT groups and/or DBT skills training groups with highly trained therapists/supervisors. Fellows receive several hours of individual and group supervision per week coupled with participation in a weekly DBT therapist consultation meeting and didactic seminars on CBT and DBT. This comprehensive training experience also includes monthly CBT consultation team, as well as a lecture series in which nationally and internationally renowned speakers are invited from the CBT and DBT communities.

In addition, post-doctoral fellows will be eligible to apply for an optional 2nd year of supervision and training under the new title and salary of junior psychologist. In this role, the junior psychologist will supervise pre-doctoral psychology students and further develop areas of specialization and interest (e.g., starting specialized groups, giving talks in community, co-authoring manuscripts). This addition to our postdoctoral program reflects both the expansion of our practice, and our dedication to providing comprehensive training that prepares psychologists for multiple career opportunities in the field.

This is an outstanding opportunity to join our cohesive team of clinicians who are dedicated to clinical training and to providing evidence-based services. To learn more about CBCW, please visit our website at: www.cognitivebehavioralconsultants.com.

|--|-------------------------------------|
| Salary: $50,006 | Location: Palo Alto, CA |
| Employer/Organization: VA Palo Alto Health Care System | Type: full-time |
| | Program: Clinical Psychology |

Requirements/ Qualifications:

U.S. citizens who are candidates in or have completed an APA-accredited doctoral program in clinical/counseling psychology and who are enrolled in or have completed an APA-accredited internship are eligible to apply. All doctoral degree requirements, including dissertation defense, must be completed prior to beginning the fellowship. Preference is given to candidates with prior training and experience in the specific emphasis areas, but it is not a requirement. Applications must be received by January 5, 2012. Applicants should be available for interview in late January through February. Selection for all positions will be announced March 14, 2012.

Job Description

Applications are currently being accepted for seven Postdoctoral Fellowship positions in the APA-accredited Clinical Psychology Postdoctoral Fellowship program at the VA Palo Alto Health Care System. Postdoctoral training at VA Palo Alto builds on the generalized foundation of the knowledge, skills, and proficiencies that define clinical psychology (clinical assessment, diagnosis, and intervention; consultation, supervision, and teaching; scholarly inquiry; organization, administration, management, and program evaluation; awareness of and sensitivity to professional, ethical, legal, and diversity issues). The program offers breadth and depth to develop both advanced general clinical skills and specific skills within the following areas of emphasis: Geropsychology, Behavioral Medicine, Palliative Care, Psychosocial Rehabilitation, Rehabilitation Psychology, PTSD, and Substance Abuse/Homeless Rehabilitation. The core program also emphasizes professional development and the development of skills for supervision. The starting date for the Fellowship is September 1, 2012.

Training at VA Palo Alto

The individualized training plan for each of the Psychology Postdoctoral Fellows will be developed with the assistance of a Primary Preceptor (one of the core faculty in the specific emphasis area) who will help plan the Fellow's overall program, ensure sufficient depth and breadth of experience, and mutually determine training experiences and supervisors during the fellowship year. We want to assure that Fellows develop the breadth required of all entry-level clinical psychologists, as well as the depth of professional and technical expertise expected in each emphasis area. Training sites and rotations are described in depth on the VA Palo Alto Psychology Training Program website (see Postdoctoral Fellowship Brochure). Opportunities for research, supervision, program development, administration, and teaching are available. Consistent with scientist-practitioner training in Psychology, Fellows dedicate one day per week to research and/or developing an educational dissemination project (depending on the emphasis area).

Stipend and Benefits

The Clinical Psychology Postdoctoral Fellowship will be for a full year, full-time with a salary of $50,006 per annum. Vacation, sick leave, authorized leave for conferences, and health insurance are available. Malpractice claims are covered; no additional professional insurance needs to be obtained.

Preference will be given to licensed or license-eligible applicants in Clinical Psychology, but other areas of psychology (e.g. Counseling, Social, Community, Cultural) will also be considered. | | |
| Job Description | | |
| The Department of Psychology at the University of Massachusetts Boston invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position beginning Fall 2012. We are seeking applicants whose research focuses on racial or ethnic cultural issues and minority populations with connections to mental health or clinical applications. Examples of appropriate areas include: experiences/effects of racism and discrimination; acculturation/enculturation; processes of racialization, including racial and ethnic identities; health and mental health experiences and/or disparities related to race and culture; problem prevention, health promotion, and/or evidence based clinical practice with racial and ethnic minority populations; or pressing social issues with clear policy and/or practice implications for racial and ethnic minorities. | | |
| About the University, the Department, and the Doctoral Program | | |
| The University of Massachusetts Boston is the only public university in Greater Boston. UMass Boston serves a diverse urban student population with a high proportion of racial and ethnic minorities, students from immigrant backgrounds, and students who are the first in their families to go to college. Seven UMass Boston colleges offer more than 100 undergraduate majors, minors, and programs of study. Nearly 30 university institutes and centers pursue research and public service in such areas as public policy; gerontology; media; labor; women in politics; disabilities; African American, Latino, Asian American, and Native American issues; and environmental concerns. For more information about the Psychology Department visit our website at http://psych.umb.edu. | | |
| Accredited by the American Psychological Association, the Clinical Psychology Doctoral Program adopts the “scientist-practitioner” model, balancing research and clinical practice training. We locate the scientist-practitioner model within a socio-cultural context, highlighting the development of social responsibility and preparing students to work effectively with underserved populations. Our program prepares academics, researchers and clinicians who have a strong theoretical background in scientific psychology and essential skills in research and clinical practice. Our graduates translate basic psychological knowledge into practical applications to meet the needs of children, adolescents and adults from diverse economic, racial, and socio-cultural groups. | Job Description | | |
| The University of Michigan's Institute for Human Adjustment is currently accepting applications for a clinical child and adolescent psychology postdoctoral fellowship position, to begin in August or Sept, 2012. This fellowship is rooted within the IHA's University Center for the Child and Family, a multidisciplinary, training-focused, child/adolescent/family outpatient center. The training prepares fellows for licensure through a one year, full time program, with an option for a second year by mutual consent. Advanced training is offered in many key professional competencies, including 1) assessment and diagnosis (including ADHD/LD and Autism-Spectrum diagnostic evaluation), 2) evidence-based psychotherapy interventions including individual, group, couples, and family therapy, and 3) clinical teaching and supervision. Infused throughout the fellowship are additional experiences in consultation and interdisciplinary collaboration, multicultural competencies, professional development, ethics, and leadership/administrative skills. Postdocs provide direct clinical service with supervision from expert clinicians, participate in a core curriculum of seminars and clinical conferences, develop supervision and teaching skills via work with trainees across multiple disciplines, consult with other professionals including our educational specialist and psychiatrist, and have opportunities to engage in community outreach and research collaborations. Many of our faculty have joint appointments in other areas of the University, with research programs focusing on depression, suicide prevention, and autism spectrum disorders. Other research collaborations between UCCF and the Departments of Psychology and Psychiatry focus on the neurobiology of depression and anxiety, children's bereavement, and disruptive behavior disorders in youth. UCCF favors an integrative clinical approach to case conceptualization, incorporating interpersonal, family systems, cognitive/behavioral, and biological/psychiatric elements, as well as an overall multicultural perspective. UCCF serves children and families from the university and surrounding communities, resulting in opportunities to serve a diverse array of children and families. Evidence-based interventions are emphasized and are tailored to the situations of individual families/clients. Particular faculty expertise lies in cognitive-behavioral interventions for youth depression and anxiety, parent behavior management training, emotion-regulation and mindfulness, psycho-educational testing and school consultation, family therapy approaches, and evaluation/intervention for youth on the Autism Spectrum. The University of Michigan provides a rich and exciting scholarly environment with frequent seminars, invited lectures, and opportunities for interaction with faculty across disciplines and departments. | | |

Family Translational Research Group (FTRG)

The Family Translational Research Group (FTRG) at New York University is looking for talented, hard-working people with a passion for understanding and preventing family violence to join our team. FTRG conducts a wide variety of cutting edge clinical psychology research on topics ranging from defining maltreatment in ways that can be reliably used by field workers, to determining how couples' conflict dynamics relate to violence, to examining the effects of family violence on children's psychological and physical functioning to furthering our understanding of risk and protective factors for child maltreatment and partner abuse. In addition to this basic research, FTRG is involved in two large prevention efforts, one for communities and the other for couples with newborns. These studies use the full spectrum of research methods — from intensive observational tools to epidemiological surveys. The FTRG typically has least 8-10 active federally-funded projects. The group includes several Ph.D. level psychologists and social workers, masters level researchers and counselors, and bachelor level research staff, as well as clinical psychology and social work students. The FTRG is co-directed by Dr. Amy M. Smith Slep and Dr. Richard E. Heyman. For more information about our group, go to www.ftrgroup.org .

We are looking for individuals to assist with and collaborate on ongoing and upcoming projects. People who join our team can expect great research experience, and, depending on skills and interests, excellent clinical experience and opportunities for publications and grant writing. Individuals with a variety of education and experiences are welcome. If you are excited by the possibility of doing innovative research on family violence in a team environment, we hope you will join us. We expect to be hiring in to the following two (2) positions:

| Requirements/ Qualifications: N/A | | |
| Job Description | | |
| The Veterans Affairs Maryland Health Care System (VAMHCS) is pleased to announce recruitment for two postdoctoral fellowship positions in the Trauma Recovery Program, with an emphasis on treating Posttraumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) in Returning Veterans. The goal of the postdoctoral fellowship is to train psychologists who have the breadth of knowledge and specific skills to treat one of the signature wounds of the current conflicts, PTSD. The fellows will work and train alongside the VAMHCS' postdoctoral fellowships in Neuropsychology and Serious Mental Illness; fellows will participate in shared didactics and training opportunities as much as possible. The fellow's distribution of effort will be 60% clinical, 20% didactic, and 20% research/program development. Though primarily focused on the needs of returning veterans, the fellowship will also include other rotations to ensure the postdoctoral fellows receive a variety of training experiences. Positions: Two, 1-year full-time positions in PTSD and postdeployment mental health. Training Setting: A large VA Medical Center with multiple specialized programs (GRECC, MIRECC, RVOEC, VA Research Centers of Excellence, Polytrauma Support Clinic Team, Women's Clinic) and a strong relationship with the University of Maryland School of Medicine. Training Model and Philosophy: Our program is based on the scientist-practitioner model. Our program philosophy is to base both the process and the content of training on research, in the service of developing psychologists who apply scientific method and knowledge to the assessment and treatment of maladaptive behavior. We will use the scientist-practitioner model; training in assessment or treatment for a particular presenting problem will be grounded in research, VA clinical practice guidelines, and expert consensus on that problem. Patient Population: The VAMHCS is proud to serve an urban, diverse adult population in addition to a rural population with a broad range of medical and mental health disorders. The Trauma Recovery Program serves veterans diagnosed with PTSD related to military and non-military stressors, as well as co-morbid Substance Abuse Disorders. The VAMHCS has both an outpatient Trauma Recovery Program and residential Dual Diagnosis Program, as well as a Military Sexual Trauma Program. Training Staff: The VAMHCS has 57 doctoral staff psychologists on staff with various areas of practice specialty. The faculty for this program will be drawn from the Trauma Recovery Programs and the Serving Returning Veterans Mental Health (SERV-MH) Program. The Trauma Recovery Program employs eleven psychologists and four social workers as part of an interdisciplinary team. The staff is highly committed to science and values training and psychology trainees. Start Date: On or about September 1, 2012 Stipend: $45,961.00 | | |

Benefits: Health Insurance, 13 days paid vacation, all federal holidays, and up to 13 days of sick leave.

Community Setting: The VA Medical Center in downtown Baltimore is located on the West side of the city about 4 blocks from Camden Yards and Ravens Stadium. We are in walking distance to the Inner Harbor, the Hippodrome, the Walters Art Museum, and various historic landmarks. Baltimore has an active live music scene, interesting neighborhoods with unique shopping, and a vital downtown arts program (www.baltimore.org). The Perry Point VA Medical Center is located approximately 45 miles north of downtown Baltimore, in Perryville, MD. It is located on a beautiful campus of approximately 400 acres on the banks of the Susquehanna River and the Chesapeake Bay where patients can enjoy a variety of recreational activities, including fishing, swimming, bicycling and jogging. There is ample, free parking on the grounds of the medical center, which is conveniently located just off of I-95 and U.S. Route 40.

Postdoctoral Fellowships at the Anxiety Disorders Center

Date Posted:
11.1.2011

Salary: Not Specified

Location: Not Specified

Employer/Organization:

Type: Not Specified

Center for Cognitive Behavioral Therapy

Program: Clinical Psychology

Requirements/ Qualifications:

Postdoctoral applicants must have completed all requirements for the granting of the doctoral degree, including the completion of an APA-accredited predoctoral internship in clinical psychology. Candidates should also have significant training and experience in cognitive-behavioral intervention for anxiety and related disorders, as well as a demonstrated capacity to participate in basic and/or applied research.

Job Description

The Anxiety Disorders Center/Center for Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (ADC/CCBT; David F. Tolin, Ph.D., director) at the Institute of Living/Hartford Hospital invites applications for two-year postdoctoral fellowships beginning in September 2012. The ADC/CCBT specializes in cognitive-behavioral therapy for anxiety-related problems, and applied research on the nature and treatment of anxiety. In addition, we are developing new programs for the treatment of depression, insomnia, adult ADHD, and other conditions.

This two-year fellowship, which is a specialty extension of the one-year APA-accredited postdoctoral residency program at the Institute of Living, is based on the Behavioral and Cognitive Psychology specialty (see <http://www.apa.org/ed/graduate/specialize/behav.aspx>) and follows the scientist-practitioner model of training.

Each postdoctoral fellow will assume primary responsibility for clinical research projects. The current study is an NIMH-funded investigation of cognitive-behavioral therapy for adults with panic disorder. Other projects, including research on compulsive hoarding and obsessive-compulsive disorder, may be added. All fellows will assume a variety of administrative and clinical responsibilities for studies. In addition, the fellows will provide assessment and outpatient cognitive-behavioral therapy for adults, adolescents, and children in the outpatient clinic, including intensive (daily) behavior therapy for obsessive-compulsive disorder, panic disorder, school refusal behavior, phobias, depression, and other problems. Numerous opportunities exist for independent basic or applied research as well.

| Requirements/ Qualifications: N/A | |

Job Description

The National Center for Posttraumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) at the VA Boston Healthcare System is accepting applications for two postdoctoral fellowships to begin September 1, 2012. These NIMH-sponsored training positions currently are funded for one year with a second year of funding anticipated. The fellowships are designed to prepare psychologists for academically-oriented careers involving the scientific study of stress, trauma, and PTSD. Previous postdoctoral fellows have launched successful careers in both universities and academic medical settings.

The fellowship program is affiliated with Boston University School of Medicine but is located primarily at VA Boston in the Behavioral Science and Women's Health Sciences divisions of the National Center for PTSD. These facilities offer outstanding resources that include technical support personnel, well-equipped psychophysiology and cognitive research laboratories, advanced computing facilities, and a broad range of professional expertise.

Fellows have the opportunity to participate in ongoing research projects conducted by program faculty, initiate independent research projects, conduct secondary analyses on existing data sets, prepare applications to federal and other funding agencies for research support, and provide direct clinical services to PTSD patients under the guidance of a clinical supervisor.

Senior faculty members are assigned to serve as mentors, and collaboration with any of the many core faculty is encouraged. Program faculty have expertise in a variety of areas in traumatic stress research with veterans and civilians. Information about faculty and research activities can be requested by contacting Administrative Officer, Andrea Carney (andrea.carney@va.gov).

First consideration will be given to applications received by December 16, 2011, but applications will be accepted until all positions are filled. The salary and benefits package is competitive, and supplemental funds are provided to support further coursework and other educational opportunities, conference attendance, and travel.

Salary: Not Specified

Location: Not Specified

Employer/Organization:

Type: Not Specified

University of Maryland

Program: Clinical Psychology

Requirements/ Qualifications:

Qualifications for this position include a Ph.D. in clinical psychology and a strong foundation in evidence-based diagnostic assessment and treatment, as well as excellent organizational, writing and data analysis skills. Applicants who have a background in Parent-Child Interaction Therapy (PCIT) and/or the Dyadic Parent-Child Interaction Coding System (DPICS) will be given strongest consideration. A background in behavioral parent training more broadly will also be viewed favorably. Salary will be commensurate with experience.

Job Description

We are seeking a Post-Doctoral Fellow with a strong foundation in interventions research with children/adolescents. The Post-Doctoral Fellow will be primarily involved in two projects: (1) a study examining the feasibility and preliminary efficacy of an early prevention program for preschool-aged children with Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) who are at increased risk for developing later depression and suicidal behavior; and (2) an NIMH-funded treatment development study which aims to develop and test a multi-component intervention for shy preschoolers, conducted in collaboration with Dr. Ken Rubin in the Department of Human Development. Responsibilities include project coordination, evidence-based assessment of young children and their parents, coordination with area preschools, treatment development, treatment implementation, and research staff supervision. Ample opportunities for data analysis, manuscript preparation, and grant writing are available and encouraged. Clinical supervision for licensure will be provided.

| Requirements/ Qualifications: Seeking bachelor's level graduates who are your best and brightest students. Please also keep in mind any students who may have graduated in the past couple of years who may be looking for a position such as this one. I am looking for applicants who are willing to make a minimum of a 1 year commitment, through the summer of 2013; however, preference is for applicants who are willing to make a 2 year commitment, through the summer of 2014. Research assistants typically go on to graduate school, often in clinical psychology. | | |
| Job Description | | |
| Seeking 2 research assistants (RAs) to work on a couple of NIAAA-funded grants examining the intersection of addictions and intimate partner violence. One study involves offering brief, adjunct alcohol interventions to women in violence intervention programs. The second study involves the collection of DNA samples from men and women to examine genetic predictors of alcohol and violence intervention outcomes. The RAs could start between May and June, 2012. The position would be full-time, located in Providence, Rhode Island, with a starting salary of approximately $31,325 with excellent benefits. It is based at Butler Hospital, affiliated with the Brown Medical School. The RAs do not conduct the brief interventions, but they do have extensive contact with clinical populations. If interested, please have RA applicants send a Cover Letter and CV/Resume to myself (gstuart@utk.edu) and my colleagues Joanna Elmquist (jelmquist@butler.org) and Andrew Ninnemann (aninnemann@butler.org). | | |

| Salary: Not Specified | Location: Texas |
| Employer/Organization: University of North Texas (UNT) | Type: Not Specified |
| | Program: Clinical Psychology |

Requirements/ Qualifications:

Required Qualifications

Doctorate from APA accredited Psychology Program at the time of appointment
License eligible in Texas Program of research in an area of health, broadly defined

Preferred Qualifications

Training in Clinical Health Psychology Potential to attract extramural funding
Strong history of publications and professional presentations Commitment to diversity

Job Description

The Department of Psychology at the University of North Texas (UNT) invites applications for an open rank, tenure track position in the Clinical Health Psychology & Behavioral Medicine program. We seek to recruit a faculty member who will conduct a rigorous program of research in health, broadly defined, with the ability to attract extramural funding. A record of teaching effectiveness as well as interest in clinical supervision is desired.

The UNT Department of Psychology has 26 FTE faculty members and over 1200 undergraduate majors. It includes three APA-accredited doctoral programs (Clinical Health Psychology & Behavioral Medicine, Clinical Psychology, and Counseling Psychology) plus an applied Experimental doctoral program. Our four doctoral programs are quite distinct and function cooperatively. Each of the accredited doctoral programs is affiliated with the departmental training clinic that also provides many opportunities for research. Clinical Health Psychology & Behavioral Medicine program faculty research interests include but are not limited to cardiovascular disease, HIV/AIDS, diabetes, health disparities, sleep, psychoneuroimmunology, and health-related interventions.

UNT is a Class I-Doctorate Granting institution located in Denton, Texas about 40 miles north of both Dallas and Fort Worth. UNT Denton is the flagship research campus of the UNT-System with over 36,000 students and over 7,700 graduate students. Both graduate and undergraduate students participate on faculty research teams. The Metroplex is the 4th largest metropolitan statistical area in the U.S. and is home to major medical centers, universities, and Fortune 500 corporations. The 2010 U.S. Census figures characterize the Dallas County population as closely divided among Hispanics (38.3%), non-Hispanic Whites (33.1%) and Blacks/African Americans (22.3%). This racial/ethnic diversity along with the region's large health care industry and substantial growth rate provide a resource-rich environment for health research.

Applicants' areas of research may range widely within cancer prevention or survivorship, with emphases in either clinical or social psychology, such as work related to risk perception, decision making, social networks, social inequalities, stereotypes, wellbeing, implicit motives, concomitant psychological symptoms, psychosocial predictors of health or treatment adherence, or the prevention of risk-related behavior. Successful candidates will have a strong commitment to research funding, publication, and teaching, and an affinity for working in a multidisciplinary, collaborative research environment. | |
| Job Description | |
| The Department of Psychology at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill invites applications for one to two tenured or tenure-track positions (open rank) in clinical and/or social psychology to begin as early as July 1, 2012. This recruitment is part of a major initiative supported by the state legislature to expand cancer research throughout the UNC campus. As such, it is a joint effort of the UNC College of Arts and Sciences and the UNC Lineberger Comprehensive Cancer Center, the University's National Cancer Institute-designated Comprehensive Cancer Center. | |
| In addition to the Department of Psychology's long history of distinction within social and clinical psychology, the Cancer Center brings unparalleled opportunities to these positions. It is a leader in behavioral and public health research related to cancer and enjoys unusual support within the state, including direct allocation of state funds to the Cancer Center that can support attractive start-up packages and excellent research resources going forward. The primary appointment for each position will be in the Department of Psychology, within the Social Psychology or Clinical Psychology Doctoral Programs, depending on the applicant's background. Support from the Cancer Center will result in a reduced teaching load. | |

Postdoctoral Fellow - Clinical Trial for

Date Posted:
8.8.2011

Generalized Anxiety Disorder

Salary: Not Specified

Location: N/A

Employer/Organization:

York University & Ryerson University

Type: Fellowship

Requirements/ Qualifications:

• Training and Experience in CBT for anxiety • Training and Experience in Diagnostic Interviewing • Excellent organizational and interpersonal skills • Excellent communication skills • Experience and interest in providing supervision • PhD in Clinical Psychology or related field • Strong interest in clinical trials and therapy provision • Strong research interests & academic background in anxiety assessment and/or treatment

Duration: Duration of the position is 2 years (with a 3 month probationary period), with the possibility of renewal for a third year. Preferred start date is September or early October, 2011.

A full-time postdoctoral fellow is required for a clinical trial on Generalized Anxiety Disorder (GAD). In this project, individuals with severe worry will be randomly assigned to receive one of two psychological treatments (either Cognitive Behavioral Therapy or Motivational Interviewing combined with Cognitive Behavioral Therapy). The study is a 5-year project, funded by the Canadian Institute of Health Research. There will be two Toronto study sites: York University & Ryerson University. The project team consists of three researchers (Dr. Henny Westra, York University, Dr. Martin Antony, Ryerson University, & Dr. Michael Constantino, University of Massachusetts) and a postdoctoral fellow (to be determined).

Job Description

Responsibilities include training & supervision of diagnosticians in using the SCID-IV, and training and supervision of research therapists in Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT) for GAD and common co morbidities. All clients will have a principal diagnosis of GAD, with high severity of worry. Therapists will provide either CBT alone or MI with CBT (but not both). The postdoctoral fellow will train all research therapists in CBT (in a group format) and provide ongoing supervision in the CBT alone arm of the study. Moreover, this individual will also see a minimum of 8 cases in the CBT alone condition.

Following training, therapists will demonstrate competent treatment delivery in at least one pilot case before seeing study clients. All sessions will be videotaped, and videotape will be used to provide supervision. Therapists will receive weekly group supervision (and possible supplemental individual supervision). Training will begin in the Fall, 2011, with pilot clients beginning to be seen in February or March 2012. Therapists would begin seeing study clients in June or July, 2012 and continue for approximately 1 to 1.5 years (i.e., to approximately December 2013).
